

DANIELA PASQUINELLI D'ALLEGRA

"LUMSA" University of Rome-Department of "Human Sciences"

Supervisor of Training in the Primary Education Sciences Degree Course

ISTITUTIONAL ROLES

National vice-president of the Italian Association of Geography Teachers

MAIN RESEARCH INTERESTS

Teaching methods, techniques and instruments and Geography learning, authentic assessment in Geography, Environmental Education, Development Education, urban Geography

ACADEMIC CAREER

She has been laboratory lecturer in the Didactics of Geography in the Degree Course of Primary Education Sciences at the LUMSA University, since the academic year 1999-2000 to date. She is the creator and coordinator in charge of "Geografica-mente", a permanent online research-action laboratory for the development of geographic thought and the Research-Didactics relationship, set up within the AIIG. She is President of the Rome Section of the Italian Association of Geography Teachers. She lectures in training and refresher courses for teachers of all school types and levels. She has participated in projects of environmental Education of the WWF and Development Education of UNICEF. Since 1995 she has been a member of the editorial committee of the magazine "Ambiente Società Territorio". She collaborates with numerous scientific and didactic journals, among which: "Semestrale di Studi e Ricerche di Geografia", "Scuola Italiana Moderna", "La Vita Scolastica", "il mondodomani". She is the author of over two hundred publications, including books, chapters of books and articles.