

GIOVANNI MAURO

University of Campania “Luigi Vanvitelli” - Department of Humanities and Cultural Heritage

Associate Professor in Geography

INSTITUTIONAL ROLES

Executive Committee Member of Italian Association of Cartography (AIC) and Italian Federation of Scientific Associations for Spatial and Environmental Information (ASITA)

MAIN RESEARCH INTERESTS

GIS, Cartography, Rural and urban geography, Environmental geography, Tourism and cultural heritage geography

ACADEMIC CAREER

Giovanni Mauro is associate Professor in Geography at the Department of Humanities and Cultural Heritage at the University of Campania “Luigi Vanvitelli” and he is qualified as Full Professor in Geography since May 11, 2021.

He teaches “Human Geography”, “Geography and GIS for cultural heritage”, “Geography of Europe”. Since March 2019, he is a member of the Doctoral College in "Cultural Heritage, Education and Territory" at the University of “Rome Tor Vergata”, where he carries out cyclical seminars and teaching activities about GIS and cultural heritage.

Since 2000, he participated as research collaborator or scientific responsible in several research projects. He has been speaker and chairman at about 50 meetings, seminars and national and international conferences. As a member of the local Organising Committee or Scientific Committee, he was involved in the organization of several meeting. He organized or participated in the several public engagement activities.

Since 2013, he is a member of editorial board “Bollettino dell'Associazione Italiana di Cartografia” (ISSN: 0044-9733). He is Referee of several “Class A” scientific journals.

He is author of more than 90 scientific publications.