

GIUSEPPE ROCCA

University of Genoa - Department of "Classics, Philosophy, History and Geographical"

Full Professor of Geography,
Adjunct Professor of Tourism Geography - University of Milan -

INSTITUTIONAL ROLES

Chairman, PhD Programme in "Società, Culture, Territorio"

Chairman, A.Ge.I. Group "Dai luoghi termali ai poli e sistemi locali di turismo integrato"

Referee for "Cahiers de Géographie du Québec"

Member of the Executive Committee of A.Ge.I. (Association of Italian Geographers)

Member of Italian Association of Geography Teachers (AIIG)

Member of Società di Studi Geografici, Florence (Italy)

ACADEMIC CAREER

Giuseppe Rocca teaches Human Geography and Heritage Geography (Faculty of Humanities, University of Genoa) and Tourism Geography (Faculty of Humanities, University of Milan). He has held permanent or visiting research positions in Italy, France, the UK and Canada. He has carried out studies of spatial mobility of people, goods and information and the evolution of tourism in the Isle of Wight, Bath, Edinburgh and Québec. Between 2005 and 2008 he was an editor for the "Atlante Italiano delle Acque". More recently, he has turned to the geo-historical analysis of heritage tourism and health tourism, while retaining a strong interest in methodology; see "Dal prototurismo al turismo globale" (Turin, Giappichelli, 2013); "Il sapere geografico tra ricerca e didattica" (Bologna, Pàtron, 2001). In 2011, he delivered the final address at the A.Ge.I. National Conference (University of Milan).