

MARCOS AURELIO SAQUET

State University of West of Paraná - Brazil - Department of Geography

Associate Professor in Regional Geography

MAIN RESEARCH INTERESTS

Epistemology, population, peasants and agroecology

ACADEMIC CAREER

Graduated in Geography from the Regional Northwest University of Rio Grande do Sul (1990), MA in Geography from the Federal University of Santa Catarina (1996) and Ph.D. in Geography from the Universidade Estadual Paulista Júlio de Mesquita Filho (2001). His Ph.D. at the Università Ca Foscari sandwich Venice and postdoctoral studies at Politecnico and University of Turin - Italy. Was a visiting professor at the Polytechnic University of Turin. He is currently Associate Professor at the State University of West Paraná (Brazil), where he also teaches in the Master course in Geography and is accredited teacher Universidade Estadual Paulista Júlio de Mesquita Filho (MSc and PhD in Geography); referee is different national journals unranked Capes and distinct PIBICs, besides being a member of the Araucaria Foundation Committee for the Humanities, University appraiser program Without Frontiers (USF/SETI/PR), FAPESP and SciELO (Scientific Electronic Library Online) program. Have experience in Geography with an emphasis on Epistemology of Geography and Agricultural Geography acting mainly with the following concepts and / or themes: territory and territoriality, territorial development, family farming, agroecology and migration.