

MARIA RONZA

University of Naples "Federico II" - Department of "Political Sciences"

Researcher in Geography

ISTITUTIONAL ROLES

Vice-President of the Italian Association of Geography Teachers (AIG) - Campania Region

ACADEMIC CAREER

Researcher since 2007, she teaches "Geography" and "Geotechnologies and cartography for cultural and environmental resources" in the degree course of "Modern Literature" and in the specialist degree of "Cultural and environmental heritage management" at the Department of Humanistic Studies, University of Naples "Federico II".

She is the vice-President of the AIG Campania (Italian Association of Geography Teachers, regional section); she is member of C.I.R.AM (Inter-departmental Research Center for Environment) of University of Naples "Federico II".

She actively participated in projects based on geographical approach and she frequently collaborated with various research institutes and governmental authorities: CNR (National Research Council of Italy), Ministry of the Environment and Protection of Land and Sea (Italy), Ministry of Education, Universities and Research (Italy), Vesuvius National Park, Regional authority of Campania, Authority for metropolitan city of Naples.

She attended meetings, conferences and seminars with the discussion of geographical reports or performing coordination activities. Her scientific production includes more than 40 publications (articles, books and book chapters).

MAIN RESEARCH INTERESTS

Landscape and cultural heritage, Land use and rural geography, GIS and Geotechnologies, Didactic of Geography, South Italy Regions.